Strathfield College opens new campus in Melbourne

Melbourne, VIC – Award-winning Strathfield College is opening its first campus in Melbourne, offering courses to international students wishing to study in one of the world's most student-friendly cities.

Having first opened as an education institution in Sydney in the late 1940s, Strathfield College has developed a reputation for being a versatile and innovative institution, known globally for its commitment to meeting the needs and interests of each of its students. This can be seen and acknowledged within the college's diverse student body, which has representatives from more than 55 different nationalities, explains Jacques Mouton, Operations Manager at Strathfield College.

'As a highly established college, we wanted to be able to expand the opportunities available to international students by opening a campus in Melbourne', Mr Mouton says.

Strathfield College selected Melbourne as its second location due to the city's consistently high ranking in QS Best Student Cities list, recognising the city for being one of the most student-friendly worldwide; in 2016, Melbourne came 2nd behind only Paris. The city has a thriving international student population and regularly tops lists of the world's most liveable cities.

Strathfield College's Melbourne campus will be offering vocational education courses Certificate IV in Information Technology, Diploma of Information Technology and Advanced Diploma of Information Technology Project Management when it opens in October. These courses have been selected due to their global nature; students with these skills will be able to transition into an increasingly international workforce seamlessly upon graduation.
